NO FURTHER ARREST IN WHISKY CASE

Further developments in the probe by the federal grand jury were not apparent Wednesday. The arrest of Grover C. Jernigan on an indictment charging conspiracy to bribe a federal official, has so far been the only visible result of the work of the grand jury on Monday. Whether or not other indictments were returned charging conspiracy to bribe a government official or whether or not any federal official was indicted for receiving a bribe has not been announced. Investigation of food hoarding and other infractions of the laws of the United States in reference to hoarding and profiteering are progressing, federal officials declare, but whether they have progressed to sufficient extent to warrant prosecution is another matter. At any rate no arrest has been made charging violation of food regulations. Charges that food is being hoarded in Memphis are talked of and cases of profiteering were cited to the grand jury by Judge John E. McCall in his charge but specific action has so far been conspicuous by its absence. Surface indications to date tend to show that the activities of the grand jury Monday were confined solely to alleged bribery charges in connection with whisky traffic and the only actual result has been the arrest of Jernigan. It is possible, however, that matters pertaining to food violations were brought to the attention of the grand jury.

What to Use and Avoid on Faces That Perspire

Skin, to be healthy, must breathe. It also must perspire—must expel through the pores, its share of the body's waste material. Certain creams and powders clog the pores, interfering both with elimination and breathing, especially during the heated period. If more women understood this, there would be fewer self-inflicted complexion troubles. The fresher, younger under-skin is permitted to breathe and to show itself. The exquisite new complexion gradually peeps out, one free from any appearance of artificiality.

Obtain an ounce of merciolized wax from your druggist and try it. Apply nightly like cream for a week or two, washing it off mornings. There's nothing quite so good for an over-tanned or freckled face.
